While the dining lounge is the focus of this home, with its space for a full-size dining table; any size of couch someone might want; and anything up to a home cinema-sized television, the other rooms are no less comfortable and cozy. The modern, fitted kitchen contains built-in appliances including, a washing machine, dishwasher and, importantly for the keener chef, a gas-fired hob and electric oven. Both good-sized bedrooms contain telephone and television points for complete convenience.

The property is only around four-years old and has been very well cared for throughout its time so far. The pleasing, neutral décor seen throughout the flat is immaculate, giving a property that is truly in move-in condition. It even comes with an allocated parking space!

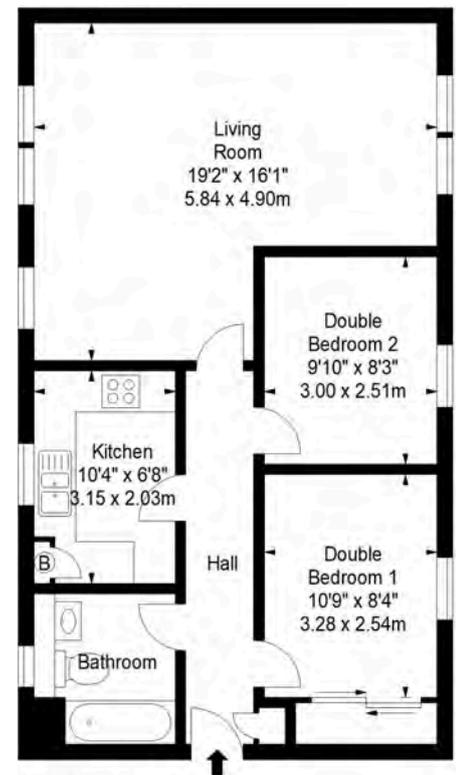

Outside, there is a pleasing view of the modern square on which the flat sits, where a pleasant, contemporary sculpture serves as a focal point. It's an ideal space for sitting with a picnic, a good book or perhaps both on a sunny, summer afternoon.

The Edinburgh City Bypass is a short distance away, giving easy access to the whole of the city; or southwards to the Borders or England by the A1, A7 or A68. The convenience of the stores at Newcraighall's Fort Kinnaird, along with its restaurants and cinema, are only a few minutes' drive away. For those who are serious about their sports or gym-going, the new David Lloyd facility at Shawfair is expected to open soon. Trains from Shawfair can take someone to Edinburgh Waverley in as little as fourteen minutes.
